A Personal Letter from I. F. Stone

Dear Friend:

The sudden closing of the Compass was a shock to all of us. Many readers have written to ask what my plans are and where they can read my column in the future.

I am deeply grateful for these inquiries, but I must now report that I see no way to continue as a daily newspaper columnist without hauling down my flag. There is no big city daily willing to let me call the shots as I see them.

Many of you have already suggested that I start a newsletter. I am convinced that there is no way to go on doing the kind of newspaper work I have always done except to strike out on my own.

I am therefore preparing to launch on January 17 I.F. Stone's Weekly, a 4-page letter size (8 1/2 x 11) miniature newspaper of uninhibited commentary and let-the-chips-fall-where-they-may reporting from Washington and elsewhere, wherever the news is hottest.

With a new Republican Administration in Washington, I want to give you from week-to-week a vivid picture of what is really going on there, to supply information you cannot get elsewhere, and to go on providing the kind of service I rendered through my column in the Compass.

It was never more important to find some means of keeping alive the voice of protest in the American press, some place in which to go on giving aid and comfort to the victims of oppression in our time. The next four years will be decisive for peace and for the maintenance of free institutions at home. I propose to make this, the biggest story in the world, my business.

This letter is the first step in launching the new weekly, and the first test of the support to be expected for it. The subscription price will be $5 a year. The job I want to do cannot be done without you. I need your help NOW. Please mail me your check for $5 TODAY and get at least one other person (more, if you will) to do the same.

What you do today will determine whether I can go on serving you as an independent journalist in the fight for peace and freedom.

With many thanks,

I. F. Stone
I. F. Stone

P. S. There is room on the reverse side for your name and address, and those of any friends to whom you may wish to send a gift subscription.

Dear Izzy:

I have just come back from a very pleasant and, I hope, fruitful weekend with Scott Buchanan and Alexander Meiklejohn. Scott is definitely willing to carry on as Chairman but feels that it is most important for us to think through the basic policies and develop a strategy of action as soon as possible. He has agreed to prepare a paper which he will present to the Executive Committee next Saturday, in the hope that the Executive Committee can from that produce a statement for the National Council meeting.

I know how busy you are and I don't intend to continue calling on you to come to New York. But in these next two sessions your presence is really very much needed. Scott was particularly anxious to know about your attitude on policy and I am sure it would mean a great deal to him to have you here on Saturday. We plan to gather for lunch at Bob Rosenwald's, 314 East 69th, and to have the general discussion on Scott's paper at that time. Then the idea is to break down into two committees, one on policy and one on organization. These committees would then report back to the Executive Committee when it reconvenes that evening at 8 in Leonard Boudin's home.

Please do your best to be here.

Cordially,

Clark Foreman, Director

AT LAST, AT LONG LAST. . . .

"At last, at long last there are signs that the conscience and common sense of the American people may be stirring themselves to impose a brake upon the orgy of 'investigations' which have been squandering public funds, diverting Congressmen from their major responsibilities, pre-empting a disproportionate attention in the press, intimidating innocent and unimpeachably loyal citizens, and slowly permeating the national consciousness with habits of suspicion and distrust. . . .

"Excessive and irresponsible Congressional investigation has become a national peril as well as a national scandal, demanding public attention and publicly determined constraint."

Rev. Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, President
Union Theological Seminary

WHEN REP. VELDE, CHAIRMAN OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES, PUBLICLY ADMITTED THAT THE COMMITTEE'S PROGRAM MIGHT INCLUDE AN INVESTIGATION OF THE CHURCHES, PROTESTS RANG OUT FROM PULPITS ACROSS THE NATION.

"Overawe them, terrify them and they will follow docilely, was the Devil's suggestion. It seems to be Senator McCarthy's and Congressman Velde's, and a great many others' today - who are demonstrating that they believe God and the Nation are best served by the frightened and credulous collaborators of a servile brand of patriotism. It comes mighty close to 'tempting God' when anyone operates on the assumption that he is the divinely constituted guardian of other men's consciences, other men's patriotism or thoughts."

Washington Cathedral

"Congressman Harold H. Velde has done a disservice to democracy by deliberately manufacturing distrust of honorable and responsible public leaders."

Rabbi David H. Panitz, Washington, D. C.

"We express the hope that the result of this threat may be quite other than the Congressman expected, namely, that the clergy of America will speak up more vigorously than ever, and in larger numbers, in defense of their rights as American citizens to think as their consciences dictate and to speak and write those thoughts without fear or favor."

THE WITNESS (Protestant Episcopal)

BUT THE CHURCH IS NOT ONLY THE MAN IN THE PULPIT. IT IS ALSO THE PEOPLE IN THE PEWS.
IT IS YOU.

THE UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE EYES THE CHURCH WITH MISTRUST BECAUSE IT IS A PLACE FOR VALUES AND IDEALS. THE COMMITTEE WOULD SPREAD A SILENCE OF FEAR WHEREVER MEN GATHER FOR A FREE EXCHANGE OF IDEAS.

"Protestants ought to insist upon the primacy of the Bill of Rights. Other times may come when they will need it. Government by terror is not true to the American way of life."

THE WATCHMAN-EXAMINER (Baptist)

THE UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE ATTACKS THE TEACHER IN ORDER TO LIMIT THE EDUCATION OF THE STUDENT. THAT IS YOU, YOUR CHILDREN.

"These investigations are cutting at the most fundamental ideals of our Constitution. To do with tax money what is now being done is as dangerous as what you will find in any totalitarian country. Religious liberty is involved in this matter - the liberty of all of us."

G. Bromley Oxnam (Methodist Bishop of Washington)

THE COMMITTEE ATTACKS THE ACTOR, THE DIRECTOR, THE PRODUCER IN ORDER TO CONTROL WHAT IS SHOWN TO THE AUDIENCE. THAT IS YOU.

"The whipping up by Congressional committees of hysterical fears and the irresponsible attacks upon individuals who are not given an adequate opportunity to defend themselves - procedures that have occurred in recent years - must be condemned as un-American and dangerous."

I. F. STONE'S WEEKLY

301 E. Capitol Street
Washington 3, D. C.

I. F. STONE, Editor and Publisher

LI. 4-7087

Dear Friends and Readers:

This is something new on the Left -- a success story. Thanks to you, this first annual report of I. F. Stone's Weekly is a cheerful one. Just one year ago, after the New York Daily Compass closed down, I launched plans for the Weekly in a similar mailing, as a last desperate attempt to keep alive the kind of independent journalism in which I had participated on the Compass and before it on the New York Star and PM.

The Weekly is now a reality. As its first year of existence comes to a close in January, it reaches readers in every single State of the Union, all the Territories and eight provinces of Canada. By normal ratios, it is probably being read by close to 50,000 people a week. That is something in the age of McCarran and McCarthy.

~~But it is not enough. I want to expand in the New Year. I want to~~ widen the channels of communication in America for honest reporting from Washington. At a time when the newspapers are deluged with tidal waves of hate, poison, propaganda and misinformation, I want to reach more people with the message of peace and with libertarian principles.

The Weekly has already made its mark. In one situation after another, as in the recent circus staged by McCarthy at Fort Monmouth and in the Korean atrocity campaign, the Weekly has furnished facts not available elsewhere. Its on-the-spot reporting of the Oxnam appearance before the House Committee on Un-American Activities won wide attention. The London New Statesman and Nation commented last summer that it would never have known of the new McCarran bill to deprive witnesses of their privilege against self-incrimination if it had not read of the bill in I. F. Stone's Weekly. Our special issue on the new McCarran bill last July sold more than 21,000 copies and is still in demand. One great Midwestern university only last week ordered five copies for its library.

That bill if passed and upheld will force liberals and radicals to go to jail or become informers on their friends and relatives. The more people we can reach the more we can alert as to the danger of this monstrous measure. What we can do depends on you.

This letter is going out to 50,000 friends and readers -- those who now subscribe to the Weekly and others who have not yet subscribed but who read my columns in PM, the New York Star or the Compass. The subscription price is still $5 a year, but we are offering a two year sub at $9 or a renewal and a gift sub for the same $9 price.

Please renew or subscribe today and get at least one friend to join you. Use the blanks on the reverse side, and self-addressed envelope enclosed. NO STAMP IS REQUIRED. Just fill it out and mail to us TODAY.

P.S.: The Weekly is in the black. But it was launched on a shoestring and extra working capital is badly needed for a revolving fund with which to finance promotion mailings for new readers. I am setting up such a fund and those of you who can afford to help on this may do so. We are still taking Charter Subscriptions at $100 a year and charter subscribers will get a specially bound volume of the full file of Weeklies each year.

I. F. STONE'S WEEKLY

301 E. Capitol Street

Washington 3, D. C.

I. F. STONE, Editor and Publisher

LI. 4-7087

Dear Friend and Reader:

No matter who wins the election, we wake up on the morning of November 7 facing the same urgent problems—chief among them the prevention of war abroad and the ending of the witch hunt at home. In its four years of existence the Weekly has proven its usefulness in both tasks. Time after time, we have provided basic documents and information available in no other publications, and printed them quickly when the news was fresh.

One recent example: no other weekly or daily paper printed the text of the Mazzei document, a feature of our special issue on "Informers and the Smith Act" which led the Supreme Court to reverse the Pittsburgh Smith Act convictions and remand them for a new trial. Another example was our Special Issue on the H-Bomb, which made available authoritative material the New York Times and most newspapers did not think fit to print. No four page paper has ever given its readers so much documented material not available elsewhere as we have done since we began publication on June 17, 1953.

That was about as insalubrious a time as anyone could have chosen to launch an independent paper of any kind. McCarthy (you may recall the name) had just become chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee. That year was to see his power at its peak. Who, then, would have given odds on our ability to keep the Weekly going, much less have predicted that within four years McCarthy would be in eclipse? With the changes at home have come equally striking and hopeful changes abroad.

The tide is running our way. The Weekly in four years has grown and prospered. I am deeply grateful to readers for having made it possible during some of the darkest years—(for non-conformists)—of American history. ~~This annual letter is a letter to say~~ "thank you." It is also an appeal, not for funds, but for help in reaching more people this year.

Please send your renewal in now, if you have not already done so. (The expiration date appears plainly beneath your address on the Weekly.) Help us grow and fight for a more peaceful world and a freer America by giving a subscription to the Weekly as Christmas (or Chanukah) gift to your friends. This year we are offering a special rate of $4 for one gift sub, $7.50 for two and only $10 for three. Use the enclosed card and we will send a gift announcement with the new subscriptions if you wish.

Gratefully,

Your friend,

Too Late to Catch Up?

The extent of the Russian break-through in space-science and the dimensions of the American defeat are only beginning to be visible. When Lyndon Johnson told a press conference here, "The Russians are ahead of us period," he was making a statement whose full import will slowly unfold itself in the months to come. In the lower echelons of the Capitol, where the real study is done, a suspicion is growing that we may never really "catch up" and will only make ourselves ludicrous when we finally send aloft that first 5-pound satellite alongside not only half-ton Sputnik II but probably more sensational Russian achievements in the skies.

Needed: A Revolution in Education

What the Russians are doing today was begun ten years ago, and we must begin now to plan for 10 and 20 years hence, not just our own satellites, but new technological break-throughs as yet undreamed of, if our national pride is to be saved. But an achievement on a comparable scale will require us to revolutionize our educational system, to raise the general level of everyone's scientific knowledge, to give teaching a lucrative and honored place in our society, and to provide the funds to guarantee that no talented youngster will fall by the way side because he cannot afford a higher education. Some of the billions now spent on arms will have to be shifted to the schools; the choice is between obsolete bombers and obsolete minds. Unfortunately, as Lyndon Johnson also said, "a conservative approach" will not do the job. The Eisenhower Administration still clings to the premise that education is primarily a local matter, though a bold speech by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion Folsom (see page two) shows one fresh mind at work in the Cabinet.

The blunt truth is that the United States cannot afford at this moment in its history to be led by a figurehead retired General, who has neither the knowledge nor the drive for the Presidency, buttressed by a Secretary of State whose slippery utterance, reckless spirit and unctuous claims to partnership with God have earned him universal distrust and distaste. Mr. Dulles at press conference admitted that we were unlikely again to have "during the foreseeable future" the kind of preponderance of military power we had in 1948 or 1949; he spoke of the impossibility of "maintaining the great gap that did exist a decade ago." But what the Pentagon fears is that the balance has already shifted; its nightmare is a space platform from which the Soviets could police the earth. But our diplomacy (if it can be called that) is still based on a situation of strength and an ability to dictate terms which no longer exist if they ever did. When the first news of Krushchev's renewed call for a summit conference and co-existence began coming over the State Department ticker, the official spokesman evaded comment by saying that we hadn't seen the

Where We're Still Ahead

Q. Mr. Secretary . . . you said that one of the reasons or the reason for the recent Soviet technological achievements is that they have been concentrating for 40 years on this military aspect of technology. But on Friday the President's Committee of Scientists and Engineers briefed the press on this issue and said, "We must puncture this myth that the Russians succeeded by concentrating all energies on military things. They have concentrated on so broad a variety of fields that it reads like a list of everything that man can do." . . . *

A. If I said they were concentrating just upon the military, that was too narrow a statement of the case. They have been concentrating primarily upon scientific and technological work, which is largely utilized by the military, altho not exclusively so. But they do not allow many of their youth, I think any of their youth, to go to theological seminaries.

—Secretary Dulles, at press conference, Nov. 5.

*This statement never got into the U.S. press. Mr. Dulles's questioner, Philip Deane, of the London Observer, was the only correspondent who showed up at that science briefing, and the wire services—which were represented—did not think it worth reporting!—IFS complete text—as if that could make a difference. Yet the new Democratic victories hold out hope of no alternative; the latest pronouncements of Mr. Truman and Mr. Acheson show they fundamentally share the Dulles outlook, and are still wedded to the delusion that an intensified arms race may again give us something like that vanished atomic monopoly. Only Gen. Omar Bradley, in a speech at press time on the fatal idiocy of an electronic arms race, struck a rational note in this capital.

Where America Could Win in Humanity's Esteem

The ticker from Moscow indicates that insofar as domestic policy is concerned, Stalin is being upgraded as well as imitated by Krushchev; Zhukov's dismissal may be followed by another purge of the armed forces as in the 30's; in Poland, where there had been hope, the curtains are slowly being lowered, and the Communist parties everywhere are being shaken down again to an obedient core. The promise of the Twentieth Congress fades. Russia has made prodigious strides in science, but after 40 years, the dictatorship of the proletariat is still a dictatorship over the proletariat; the people are still in tutelage; the press still feeds them pre-digested decisions supported by one-sided versions of what has occurred in the upper ruling circles. This absence of freedom, this lack of democracy, is a weakness not a strength. In a race for the esteem of mankind, peacefully competing, this is the terrain on which our country could cover itself with honor—if we had the courage really to encourage freedom at home, instead of merely talking about it.

Will All That Pooling Talk End Only in Lifting the Atomic Restrictions on Germany?

The U.S. As Well as the U.S.S.R. Is Walking Out on the Arms Talks

The day Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Kuznetsov announced the Soviet Union's withdrawal from the UN's present 12-man disarmament committee and its 5-man subcommittee, the Washington Post's Chalmers Roberts was being briefed at the State Department on the fact that (Washington Post, Nov. 5) the Eisenhower-Macmillan "pooling" program was based on the "grim" assumption "that no agreements can be negotiated with the Kremlin," adding (in a resounding understatement) that Secretary Dulles "never has been an enthusiast for negotiating with the Soviet Union." This is not so different from the heart of Kuznetsov's statement. He asked the UN Political and Security Committee how one could expect results from the 5-nation arms subcommittee when four of them are members of NATO and the Eisenhower-Macmillan communique of October 25 pinned NATO's hopes on "the intensification of the arms race."

Men to Watch Indeed

In this connection it is worth noting that pressure is being exerted from Washington (1) to discourage France from making its own atomic weapons and (2) to revise the 1954 agreements under which Germany agreed not to make atomic, biological, or chemical weapons and rockets. . . . A headline in the London Daily Sketch of Nov. 2 illustrates the build-up to be expected, "Big Two Call in German A-Brains". . . . The "pool" idea is already dead, though it hangs on in the after-fumes of the headlines. . . . Congressional coldness and Dulles's hostility is turning the idea toward a system of division of labor rather than pooling of brainpower. Each of the Western allies would work on specific projects, sharing the results by bilateral agreement. We would keep the major projects for ourselves, thus avoiding an outcry in Congress about security and the giving away of secrets. Since this is quite different from true partnership, and too much like the over-ballyhooped but long moribund NATO Mutual Weapons Development Program of three years ago, it will provoke sour reactions at next month's Paris meeting. . . .

The 'Loopholes' Go Back to 1776

New step in the glorification of our secret police: Don Whitehead's feeble official portrait of the FBI is now to be filmed with Jimmy Stewart playing the lead role as an FBI

For Journalism Students

If a minister of the gospel were kidnapped and beaten in the Soviet Union, the story would be on every front page in America. But it was hard work on Nov. 5 finding the story of how a Rev. T. D. Wesley was horse-whipped by three car-loads of attackers the night before in Selma, Ala. We couldn't find it in the New York Times but the Washington Post gave it four paragraphs on page 19 and the Baltimore Sun three paragraphs on page 3.

Indifference bordering on contempt was evident in the way the Associated Press handled the story. The rival United Press lead said "Three carloads of white men, including one in a 'Klan-type' mask, kidnapped and horse-whipped a Negro minister, Sheriff Carl A. Griffin reported tonight" and added that the minister was whipped when he refused to "talk about Negro integration leaders in the State." But the Associated Press omitted any mention of the motive and began its story this way, "A Negro minister says he was lashed by white men as he drove home from his church." It ended, "Officers said he was severely beaten but not seriously injured." No doubt the boys were just funnin'.

agent. "The task now," Dorothy Manners reported from Hollywood in the Hearst press Nov. 4, "is to find the actor to play the J. Edgar Hoover part when Hoover was about 29. Although Hoover's role is not dominant, it was J. Edgar himself who personally negotiated the deal with Jack Warner for the screen rights." . . . In his address to the FBI National Academy Nov. 4 Hoover said that in 1949 the nation was "confronted with a subversive conspiracy of staggering proportions. The Communist party itself numbered well over 50,000 members . . ." If 50,000 Communists are "staggering" in a nation of 170,000,000, then Italy and France, each with less than a quarter our population but with several million Communists should have staggered to their doom long ago. . . . Hoover's main theme was the "lack of vision and misdirected effort" which was enabling criminals "and subversive elements" to use "loopholes" in the law. . . . In something of a new high in overstatement, Hoover declared, "A typographical error in a warrant or indictment can paralyze the wheels of justice"—but only until it has been retyped. . . . The real "loopholes" are in the Bill of Rights—the Fathers seem to have been the original subversives. . . .

Higher Salaries, More Respect for 'Profs' . . . Pay for College Students?

"It doesn't do much good, however, to provide quality graduate study facilities and fellowships for potential teachers if what lies beyond graduate school is social and economic disappointment. It is nothing short of a national disgrace that we are discouraging people who want to teach by offering salaries that are far below the level justified by their training and far below the levels which others are willing to pay. . . . If college teachers in these fields are not paid adequately, they will soon become as scarce as competent science teachers in high schools. . . .

"In a sense, however, low salaries for college teachers are simply a reflection of a more fundamental fault—the lack of respect accorded to teaching by the public. A society that has become preoccupied with action [and money—IFS] has, I am afraid, tended to neglect those whose function is somewhat more remote from the arena of activity. The task of reestablishing the college professor as a key figure in our society, worthy of society's high regard and reward, is a task that requires more than raising salaries. . . .

"It disturbs me greatly that the best estimates available indicate that about one-third of the top quarter of our high school graduates do not now go on to college. This is a serious national waste . . . the concept that a student's tuition fee should be equal to the total cost of his education . . . seems to assume that only the individual derives benefits from his education, and it tends to limit opportunities for higher education to those who are relatively wealthy. . . .

"The most qualified Russian high school graduates—about 30 percent—are offered free higher education, and all but the weakest students are actually paid for going to college."

—Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Conf. on Sc. Educ., Chicago, Nov. 2.

A Debate the Press Ignored: The U.S. "Abstains" Again on South African Racism

State Department "Tones Down" Its UN Delegation on Apartheid

United Nations, N. Y.

In 1952 the U.S. voted to put apartheid on the agenda of the United Nations General Assembly but has always abstained from voting on any resolution which specifically criticized South Africa for racial discrimination. Again this past week when the General Assembly, sitting as the Special Political Committee, voted 59 to 5, with 10 abstentions, appealing to South Africa to "revise its policy," the U.S. abstained.

Less surprising than this abstention was the equivocal speech made by Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana University, the U.S. spokesman in the debate. Except for the Baltimore Sun, whose Paul W. Ward gives the UN unusually comprehensive coverage, the press seems to have ignored the entire debate.

Ward reported (Nov. 1) that Wells, a Republican, wanted to make a strong speech because of Little Rock and that two other U.S. delegates, George Meaney and Philip M. Klutznick of B'nai Brith, "helped Wells draft a stronger speech" only to have it toned down by the State Department.

But, On The Other Hand . . .

The queasy wording of the speech as finally delivered avoided any direct condemnation of apartheid. It said South Africa's policy is "under attack here, as discriminatory." On the other hand, Mr. Wells added, South Africa claimed that apartheid was "non-discriminatory and not oppressive" but "the best solution . . . for the difficult problem."

Wells then went on to say that "without condoning in any way" South Africa's policy, "a number of other governments openly practice policies which deprive their citizens of basic human rights." Racial problems were "complex" and the UN might help by "positive studies" but had no power and although this was the sixth session at which the Assembly had discussed the question, "we have regrettably seen no improvement." This was as close as he came to expressing disapproval. This year only five nations voted against the resolution; all white and all colonial powers which govern colored peoples, four of them in Africa. The five were Australia, Belgium, France, Portugal, and Great Britain. The abstainers, besides the U.S., were Argentina, Canada, Dominican Republic, Finland, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Peru, and Spain.

Strange Kind of Guardian

"The government of the Union of South Africa defined the relationship of the European to the non-European community as being that of guardian to ward. What would be thought of a guardian who, in deliberate defiance of the best medical and scientific opinion, persisted in regarding his ward as mentally defective and treating him as such?"

—Cruise O'Brien (Ireland) UN Debate on Apartheid.

Spain still has, and Italy until the war did have, African possessions. Thus from the colored man's point of view the white empires either voted against the resolution or abstained, though not one nation spoke in defense of South Africa.

The Iranian delegate, in opening the debate, made the crucial point. There was race discrimination almost everywhere but South Africa "was the only one in the community of nations which had adopted racial segregation as a goal." Iraq said that in pursuit of this objective South Africa had begun "to apply rigorous measures of repression which would actually amount to genocide." Ghana protested that on apartheid the great Powers had taken refuge behind legal technicalities in sharp contrast to their position on Hungary.

Latin America Called Mulatto

Fabregat of Uruguay protested that the dark peoples of the Union of South Africa had been "sequestered" like people "in concentration camps" and cited the "repugnant" statement of its Prime Minister, who said that without apartheid, South Africa would become like "the mulatto republics of Latin America." The remark rankled everywhere below the Rio Grande. Ethiopia said South Africa was trying to spread its policy throughout the African continent and warned this might lead to "desperate actions."

India, on the last day of debate, expressed admiration for "the trend of legislation, enforcement and executive measures adopted by the United States under the leadership of a great President." Even this went unreported. The U.S. press treated the whole debate as of no importance. But in the question of apartheid we ignore a volcano, and put our moral pretensions to shame.

What the President Failed to Explain About the School Integration Ruling

President Eisenhower's fuzzy grasp of the integration issue was again evident in his press conference of Oct. 30. He said the South had lived "for 56 years under a social order that was approved by the Supreme Court, and specifically with respect to education, the theory of separate but equal facilities. Now they are asked to consider the whole system unconstitutional and, naturally, this causes difficulties." This is expressing it as the Southern white supremacists do, and helps to create the impression that the South is somehow the victim of the Supreme Court.

There are several things wrong with this way of putting it, aside from the puzzling reference to 56 years; Plessy v. Ferguson, which first established the separate but equal doctrine, was in 1896, or 61 years ago. The Plessy ruling was one in a series of decisions which cut down the protection the Fourteenth amendment was intended to give the Negro while building that amendment up as a safeguard of corporate rights.

When Justice Brown wrote for the Court in Plessy that while the Fourteenth amendment was, of course, intended to bring about "absolute equality of the two races before the law" but "could not have been intended to abolish distinctions based on color", he set a high water mark for sophistry. Harlan, dissenting, provided the perfect answer when he retorted that the Constitution was "color blind." But had as Plessy v. Ferguson was, it did not do what the President implied. Neither that decision nor any other decision by the Supreme Court since slavery was abolished ever authorized white supremacy as practiced by the South. The Court did not, in talking of separate but equal facilities, endorse a social order actually based on separate and degradingly unequal facilities. It is this on which the country needs to be educated, if the propaganda of the South is to be combatted. Education must begin in the White House.

Canada's Lester Pearson Attacks "Diplomatic Rigidity" and Frozen U.S. Policy

The First Western Statesman to Say the Missile Age Calls for Co-Existence

Lester B. Pearson, Canada's former Foreign Secretary, made a speech at the University of Minnesota Nov. 3 worthy of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize recently awarded him. Except for an appreciative editorial in the Washington Post Nov. 6 and a news story in the New York Times, the U.S. press largely ignored the speech because it went counter to cold war policy. We give the gist of it here:

"... One of two things will happen. (1) Nuclear war with inter-continental missiles against which no present defense would save us from total destruction; or (2) Suspension between uneasy peace and global war in a state of tension and fear... all history shows that unless we do something about it, the second will ultimately lead to the first... nor does it do any good... to wrap ourselves in a cloak of impeccable rectitude and diplomatic rigidity....

"What do we oppose to this controlled and centralized society? Too often, merely the well-born clichés of the superiority of freedom and democracy and our 'way of life'... Soviet life, Soviet policy, I know, is founded on power and compulsion, rather than consent. But are we sure that our own social purpose... is steady.... The very word freedom has now lost some of its earlier angry meaning of stern and sturdy resistance to pressures and persecutions.... Surely we are not going to escape total state control in order to seek security in the 'big organization' type of social and economic conformity....

"We have, then, two duties in the West; first, to protect our institutions within the city walls from deterioration and decay, and then to defend the walls themselves.

The Supreme Obligation of All Men

"There is, however, a third and even more important duty: to bring about a state of affairs in the world where no one will wish to attack us at all—or we, them; where eventually walls themselves will be as much of an anachronism as trenches, barbed wire and forts on the U.S.-Canadian border. This is the supreme obligation of all men in all nations....

"Our insistence on the primacy of this task of making peace by international negotiation; our seizure of every political opportunity to this end, does not mean that we should or need contemplate agreements which would betray either our friends or our principles. Indeed peace on such terms would be false and any arrangements made would be worthless. I know that there are those who look with suspicion on every move which is made that implies a desire or even a willingness to negotiate; who call it 'appeasement'—one of those words debased by polemics—or softness toward Com-muniism. Such critics forget that if total and unremitting hatred of Communism were the only test of loyalty to democratic ideals, Hitler would be the greatest democrat of all time....

"I quite realize that the easiest, and in some quarters the most popular attitude that we could adopt in the cold war would be a relentless and immovable stand on a platform of inveterate and inflexible hostility to Soviet Russia and determined opposition to every move she makes or tries to make any place any time.

The Hope of Unconditional Surrender

"The corollary to this means taking steps to counter and defeat every such move in the hope that Russia will eventually accept without conditions our terms for ending the cold war and withdraw—actually and ideologically—behind her old Czarist boundaries. I see myself no prospect of any such easing of tension, and, ultimately, of international peace and security, if we base our policy and diplomacy on any such thesis....

"I accept the fact that no matter how enlightened and flexible our policy, we cannot safely allow it to result in a weakening of what the military call our defense posture. If, however, we allow an exaggerated and provocative posture to result from, or be encouraged by, a rigid 'unconditional surrender' type of diplomacy, we make the establishment of peace through tolerable arrangements even more difficult than it is....

"There is a ferment of freedom ever at work, even in Russia; for freedom, as the epic of Hungary has shown, cannot be rooted out of the human mind by force or by fraud.... Such an evolution, however, will be held back, perhaps indefinitely, if we take fixed and final positions now in opposition to every Russian move. As I see it, if and when Russia has a legitimate interest in some area or some development, we would be foolish to act as if that interest can either be ignored or attacked.

"Such an attitude, of course, plays right into the hands of the worst elements inside the Kremlin. It also weakens our position in those nations who have no love for Communism but refuse, for reasons which seem perfectly good to them; to take sides in the cold war. There are situations in the world today which do not admit of any permanent solution which will bring about stability, without Russian participation in, and at least acceptance of, that solution. We might as well admit that hard fact...."
